On May 4, 2011, Ostrava hosted the First International Academic Fire Fighting Games. Organized by the VŠB – Technical University of Ostrava in cooperation with the Association of Firefighters of Bohemia, Moravia and Silesia under the auspices of the deputy mayor of Ostrava, the contest took place on the premises of the Fire Rescue Service of the Moravian-Silesian Region in Ostrava-Poruba.

Participants competed in eight events. Individuals, both men and women, competed in the 100 metres hurdles and only men took part in the 4-floor tower climb with a hook ladder. Team events included 4 x 100 metres hurdles relays (men's, women's, and co-ed with at least one woman) and fire attack (men and women). 118 students from 13 universities took place in the first academic championship. Students who took the first six places scored points for the competition of universities.
